

INSANE WOMAN ON A TRAIN.

Mrs. Lingrew Alarmed Sixth Avenue "L" Passengers.

Said Her Husband Threatened Her Life When Arraigned in Court.

A poorly clad, wild-eyed Swedish woman, named Mrs. Christina Lingrew, thirty-five years old, and living at 310 West 12th street, New York, created considerable excitement among the passengers on an uptown Sixth Avenue Elevated train last evening by wringing her hands and shouting every now and then:

"Save me from him! He wants to kill me!"

She was seen to board the train at Forty-second street. The train hardly left the station when Conductor Crosby's attention was called to her by another woman whom the crazy woman had frightened almost into hysterics.

Mrs. Lingrew had seized the woman by the arm with both hands, and, in a wild, incoherent manner, she exclaimed:

"He wants to cut my throat! Save me!"

An unknown man, suspecting at once that Mrs. Lingrew was insane, made her loosen her grasp on the woman's arm. Mrs. Lingrew then wept and screamed, calling upon the passengers "to be good to her" and not allow her to be murdered.

Conductor Crosby decided to take her up as far as Fifty-ninth street and Ninth avenue, so that she could be taken to Roosevelt Hospital, which is but a few blocks from that station. On reaching the Fifty-ninth street station Crosby had the engineer to blow the police signal, which brought Policeman Cahill, of the West Sixty-eighth street station.

Cahill did not take her to the hospital, but took her on a surface car to the West Sixty-eighth street station, where she was placed in the care of the matron. Mrs. Lingrew was quite calm when arraigned before Justice Voorhis in the Yorkville Police Court this morning, but signs of insanity were noticeable. She said that she was the mother of three children, the youngest of which was seven weeks old, and that her husband, Alfred, drove her out of the house yesterday, threatening her with death if she returned. Justice Voorhis committed her to the insane pavilion at Bellevue for examination.

"Yes, I don't feel well here," pointing to her head, she said to Cahill as he took her downstairs to Mrs. Lynch, the matron. An ambulance was then summoned and she was transferred to Bellevue Hospital.

PIRATE SLOOP BREAKING UP.

A Port Douglas Merchant Identifies Some of the Stolen Goods.

RYE, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The black pirate sloop Sarah is fast going to pieces on the reef at Milton Point. She will not last long in this storm. She is not worth saving, and there will be no effort made to do so.

Dennis O'Hearn, the pirate, who was arrested, is still in the White Plains Jail. Louis E. Smith, of Port Douglas, Me., was robbed by the pirate crew on the night of Feb. 8 last, has come here and identified the goods that were captured in the sloop. He says they were all taken from his store. There is no trace of Capt. Fitch yet.

O'Hearn was handed over to the custody of Justice William Stravon this afternoon, and will be taken back to Northport to stand trial for his part in the crime of breaking into and robbing Smith's store.

JOSIE THREATENS SUICIDE.

Didn't Know 'Twas a Fence Where She Was Arrested.

Proprietor "John Doe" Bailed, but His Customers All Held.

The persons who were arrested yesterday in the "fence" at 42 Division street, were this morning, with the exception of "John Doe," remanded at the Essex Market Court for examination to-morrow morning. John Doe, who is charged with being the proprietor of the place, was allowed to go on $1,000 bail also for examination to-morrow morning.

The examinations were at first set down for this afternoon, but on the request of Emanuel M. Friend, of Friend & House, of the Pulitzer Building, who appeared for "John Doe," they were put off until to-morrow.

JOSEPHINE MILLER.

The most conspicuous of the prisoners in the handsome young woman who gave the name of Josie Miller, but admitted that it was fictitious. She refused absolutely to give her address. She was arrested by Detective Levy, of the Eldridge street station, yesterday afternoon at the "fence" shop after having offered fifty yards of silk remnants for sale.

In court this morning she told Justice Koch that the silk had been given her by a Mrs. Kate McLaughlin, of 22 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, who told her to go to 42 Division street with it, and promised "to make it all right" with her for whatever she could get for the "stuff."

Mrs. Miller tearfully protested her innocence, and said that if she was kept in prison another night she would commit suicide rather than survive her disgrace.

Somebody who seemed to know her asked whether she was not Mrs. Aaron. At this question the woman grew pale and burst into a fresh torrent of tears, but refused to answer.

She is about twenty-seven years old, a brunette and remarkably good-looking. She said that she had no children living. Her dress was of good black material, waist of blue silk. Over this she had thrown a white wrap.

Detective Levy's two other prisoners were Thomas Hayes and James Smith. Levy had taken a diamond pin from Hayes, which the latter had offered for sale for $25 at the "fence" shop. The detective thought he recognized this pin as one that had been given him as a Christmas present, and which had been stolen from him several weeks ago while he was doing in an "L" car.

This morning, however, Detective Levy said that he had requested the donor of the pin to take it to the jeweler where it had been bought, and the latter pronounced it "very similar to the one he had lost, but it was nevertheless not the same one." The confiscated pin will therefore go to the "property clerk" until its owner can be found.

Detective Hunt, of the Eldridge street station, also had two prisoners from the "fence." In court these were Jeremiah Moriarty, thirty-two, of 25 Oak street, and Robert Connelly, nineteen, of 22 Cherry street. They were caught red-handed with cases of Vermont biters in the "fence."

The people in the neighborhood of the "fence" say that the man who gave his name in court as "John Doe," had hired the shop under the name of John Brown. He is tall and slender and dresses very stylishly. He has a sandy Vandylke beard tinged with gray, and presents a very "swagger" appearance.

At 22 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, no such person as Kate McLaughlin is known. There are four families living in the house, but none by the name of McLaughlin.
